Koroneburg Old World Festival's 10 Year Anniversary ~ Let the Celebration begin!

Corona, CA February 2, 2007 – Koroneburg Old World Renaissance Festival has announced the dates for its 10th year celebration – opening the gates to the historic village on the weekend of May 12th and running consecutive weekends through June 10th including Memorial Day. Located in Riverview Park in Corona, CA the festival is planning a breathtaking show for all patrons young and old.

Koroneburg is Southern California's only permanent renaissance village, with quaint buildings, busy shops and a grand tourney field. Filled with gardens and shady nooks, the festival is a perfect way to spend a relaxing day of shopping and fine dining, learning historical crafts from our guilds, or cheering on the joust and enjoying the recreation of a German village from times past. Follow along with the fictitious village's very own Baron Von Lauffer, master brewer and Master of Ceremonies as he tours the community on this very special occasion.

There will be jousting every afternoon on the tourney field, a battle pageant, parades, archery demonstrations and displays of chivalry daily. Entertainers will be performing continuously on several stages throughout the festival, and village characters and street entertainers will be strolling and performing all day. There are over 50 crafters in residence with handmade treasures for shoppers' delight. Food and desserts are available in the food courts and a fine dining restaurant. Various ales are available at stands interspersed throughout the festival. Special plans are being made for this 10th Anniversary, be sure to watch the website at www.koroneburg.com for further announcements and notifications.

Koroneburg Old World European Festival is located in Crossroads Riverview Park at 14600 River Road in Corona, California.
